STANDARD

FUR GARMENTS

Of any article in the Fur line. Our prime objections from merchants that make a their business to handle everything, that have no knowledge of the Fur business, and purchase many foul imitations and other Furs to sell unsophisticated in the Skin. We buy no such goods as advertised by a house that claims to be responsible, and advertising themselves under an assumed name. We make Undressed Coat Plush. Our one price system keeps you. Those buy in glowing accounts Alaska Seal Plush. All we know is they deceive you. Another don't. Cornish Plush, as we know of, and we believe from gentlemen, Where the Silk and Bristle comes from, each of they actualities, we will not find they are beloved their consistent necessity. The Seal Plush is made from Chinese Silk and Cotton Velvets. We are in the Fur business, under the Fur business and customers' business, and are in, stocking Furs, and we can sell you any article in the Fur line 20 to 25% per cent less than you can any garment made from materials who have nothing about Furs, and get the best.

HOLIDAY DRY GOODS SALE!

S. M. ROTHSCHILD.

The press is the harbinger of all civilization, and the American people are getting their full benefit, particularly we in Chicago. We are blessed with two hundred and seventeen local newspapers, and the foreign papers, journals, etc., read by our population are innumerable. The Chicago Tribune ranks as one of the foremost papers in the land. The intelligent reader will be amazed when he glances at this morning's issue; he pauses; is there anything in it? Is everybody crazy? everybody bankrupt? No! It is Christmas—a time when everybody wants to sell and a time when everybody wants to buy something for their loved ones at home or abroad. The rich as well as the poor; the liberal-minded and the hourly miner are loosening their purse-strings. What shall we buy? and where shall we buy it? are the questions. The answer is, Come to us.

I Have the Most Beautiful and Most Useful Christmas Presents

The prudent buyer don't throw his money away for ornamental wares. Sensible people are investing in something which is useful as well as ornamental. Sound-minded folks must have intrinsic value. Toys and trinkets are well enough in their place. Good books and stationery are needed. Jewelry (if good) don't come amiss. But nothing is more needed in this rigorous climate, and nothing is more adorning to the form than some nice piece of wearing apparel, such as a "Cloak," "Wrap," "Shawl," "Dress," "Gloves," "Mittens," "Hosiery," "Handkerchiefs," "Laces," or "Underwear." The times are hard, and all everybody must have a Christmas Present, as Christmas comes but once a year. I have the most beautiful, I have the most useful Christmas Presents

For Ladies, For Gentlemen, For Children.

I don't keep a toy shop, nor do I keep a Cheap John store. I keep a first-class Dry-Goods business. I don't do like other merchants, mark goods up during Holiday Times, but, on the contrary, I mark them down to about half price in order to close them like Winter Goods out, thereby benefiting my customers and making lots of friends. Furthermore, I need room. Now I must have for new goods for the coming season, which have already commenced to arrive, and those hundreds of thousands and millions of dollars' worth of Fine Holiday Goods must go—and I will. I defy the keenest competition to produce a finer assortment of goods than my present stock is. I will show more inducements to my customers and give bigger bargains

MONOPOLY'S DEFEAT.

An Important Verdict in a Suit Against the Lake Shore Company.

The Rights to Dockfrontage in Favor of the Standard Oil Corporation Not Affected.

Judge McHenry Instructs that Difference is Being Of Too Long Equal Are Unjust.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The jury in the famous Angle dock-frontage case of Garfield, Sherman & Haight against the Lake Shore Road returned a verdict this afternoon of $1,000 for the plaintiffs—$1,000 as the difference between the value placed upon the Standard Oil Company on the creation of terminal facilities at the dock and the value of the property without the dock. The plaintiffs claimed $5,000 as the difference in the value of the property to the road, by which the probable annual increase in profits would be affected. The plaintiffs had sought to recover of the defendants under the Interstate-law case, and their testimony took this view of the matter. The Interstate-law case, however, was not dismissed at that point—the only one that disappeared at that time was to prove which attempted to $1,000 damages.

THE COURT'S CHARGE.

This case was presented yesterday morning. Judge McHenry charged the jury. As it relates to their duties, and left evening came they retired to their rooms for the night that had not rendered a verdict. Judge McHenry's charge occupied all the session hereof in the case and half an hour-one hearing on the terms of quote. A synopsis of the charge is as follows:

The plaintiffs in their petition state that they and a few others of the business of handling coal, and that the defendants, a combination of railroad companies, and other individuals and companies, had made a combination to prevent them from carrying on their business, and to drive them out of it, and to compel the plaintiffs to sell their property to the defendants at a great sacrifice, and that under threat of the defendants to carry out their purpose the plaintiffs were compelled to sell their property to the defendants at a great sacrifice, and that the defendants have since carried out their purpose, and have driven the plaintiffs out of business, and have appropriated their property to their own use, and have damaged the plaintiffs to the amount of $1,000, and ask judgment for that amount. The defendants deny the allegations of the petition, and say that they have not conspired to injure the plaintiffs, and have not driven them out of business, and have not appropriated their property to their own use, and have not damaged the plaintiffs to the amount of $1,000, or to any other amount, and ask judgment.

THE LAW GOVERNING.

The case has been tried with everything that could be said on both sides, and the court has given you the law governing the case. Judge McHenry's charge occupied all the session hereof in the case and half an hour-one hearing on the terms of quote. A synopsis of the charge is as follows:

Congress Opposition to the Ratification of the Proposed Treaty with Spain—Notes.

CONGRESSIONAL AGENCY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Something in regard to one of the most prominent and influential Democrats in Congress, the appointment of Secretary Bayard to succeed Secretary Frelinghuysen, is of interest at this time, as Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet does not seem to be complete, and the only trouble in the matter is as to a place for the California Senator. This Democrat could be appointed Secretary of the Treasury, but Mr. Bayard would greatly prefer to be made Secretary of State. It is an undertaken that will have to occur before the Presidential candidates in 1888. It is not certain that at the head of the Treasury Department he would not have to go to Congress during the first year following, but that he would thereby secure a position which would make other more desirable places open to him. Mr. Bayard is a man of ability, and has been in public life for many years, and with considerable experience in Congress, and as Minister to England, he would be a strong man for the Treasury Department, and would be fortified for the position of Secretary of State. He is a successful corporation lawyer, and has a considerable personal fortune.

Senator Sargent is mentioned for the Treasury Department, and there appears to be a strong sentiment in favor of his appointment. He is a man of ability, and has been in public life for many years, and with considerable experience in Congress, and as Minister to England, he would be a strong man for the Treasury Department, and would be fortified for the position of Secretary of State. He is a successful corporation lawyer, and has a considerable personal fortune.

"I was visiting Austin last," mused Tim Shanley's Washington-street friend yesterday afternoon to the owner of the half-brick of his close friend, "and I was struck with the rapid growth of the suburb. It has now a population of 20,000, and is a thriving town. Chicago is nothing like as prosperous now as it was two years ago, and I don't see why Austin should not grow as much in the next two years as it has in the last two. Of course, Chicago is a much larger city than Austin, and it would require a much greater increase in the number of its inhabitants to make the same percentage of increase; but I don't see why Austin should not double its population in two years

THE DRAMA.

"Lightsome Tunes to Summary.

A Review of the Principal Entertainments of the Week.

The musical accordions of the week have been standing still; recitals or chamber-music are scarce, and light opera is the order of entertainment which have been quoted in almost every case to good audiences, no observer whose pleasure it is to guard the many musical performances that are given will fairly fail to notice the fact that the general audience quickly appreciates and appropriates at their leisure to a performance. The general judgment of the people seems to be taking a more discriminating form, and they have more ready to commercialize merits, and are more able to comprehend and enjoy them. The result is a more discriminating support of the better class of entertainments, and a more ready withdrawal of patronage from the poorer. It is a healthy sign of the times, and one which augurs well for the future of the drama. The people are learning to demand the best, and they will get it.
